

Food waste and citizen science workshop and network AGENDA

Wednesday June 6th at 12-5pm

At Think Tank Hub Geneva (WMO building, Avenue de la Paix, 7BIS, Geneva, Switzerland)

Time	Agenda item	Short description
12:00 - 12:30	Lunch and registration	For those joining in Geneva this is time to meet each other and reduce food waste from lunch. For those joining online this is time to make sure everything works, you are able to connect and maybe do some online networking.
12:30 - 12:45	Introduction to workshop	Evelin Piirsalu from SEI Tallinn welcomes everyone on behalf of the project team.
12:45 - 13:30	Introduction to participants	We introduce ourselves through an item/prop which represents your enthusiasm for or interest in citizen science and/or food waste.
13:30 - 14:30	Overview of current food waste and citizen science research	The SEI project team introduces the scope of the workshop, how we frame food waste and citizen science, and present the current research found in literature. We share two examples of SEI projects that relate to food waste and citizen science. Participants are then invited to share additional research projects they know about.
14:30 - 14:50	Coffee/funding resources	Over coffee we will network and list the existing and future funding sources that might support research in this area.
14:50 - 16:30	New ideas for research projects	We develop potential research ideas by first describing our own which we then cluster into groups of related ideas. In small groups we then develop a more detailed research concept note for each of these clusters of ideas.
16:30 - 16:40	Next steps for this network and research ideas	We map our research ideas to the funding streams identified before and discuss next steps to develop these ideas into actual submissions. We also discuss what format this network should take going forwards.
16:40 - 16:55	Evaluation	We evaluate what we take away from this workshop.
16:55 - 17:00	Round up and thank you	And we end with a thank you to all who have participated.